BETWEEN CLASSES HE WILL MOTOR

Dr. D. W. B. Kurtz, M. U.
Student, Owns a Touring Car.

CO-EDS IN A SCRAMBLE

Not Enough Seats to "Go Around" and He Doesn't Like to Discriminate.

One of the 3,000 students at the University of Missouri has a motor car. His father didn't buy it for him either. Daniel Webster Boone Kurtz, Jr., a native of Boone county, bought a machine a few weeks ago. He has been touring Central Missouri during his vacation days but now will use it only for recreation in the evening.

A motor car, he says, however, is not all that a man may desire. This one sometimes gets out of shape and he is compelled to sweat from his hard work.

"I sometimes feel like trading it for a sow and pigs," said Mr. Kurtz. When everything seems to go wrong, when a tire punctures at the wrong time, then I feel like giving it away—almost."

No Trouble With Young Women.

Kurtz also has found another objection to having a car. He was born and reared near Columbia, and has too many young women acquaintances. They are his special friends since he began motoring. He says he is afraid to take one and leave the others for he is anxious not to offend any of them. He sometimes wishes he had bought a large touring car instead of a runabout that will carry himself and only one passenger.

Kurtz is a graduate of the School of Medicine in the University of Missouri. His father, D. W. B. Kurtz, Sr., is a former professor of the University and represented Boone county in the Missouri Legislature several years ago. The father desired his son to be a physician and persuaded him to study medicine. From his earliest youth young Kurtz desired to be a lawyer. His father's expressed wish was carried out by the son. He was graduated with the degree, doctor of medicine.

Patients Came Rapidly.

Once out of school, Dr. Kurtz began the practice of medicine. He practiced with his brother a while in Illinois but this did not suit him. He wanted to make a start for himself. Coffeyville, Kan., made famous by the Dalton Brothers' raid years ago, seemed to him a suitable place for a doctor to build a practice. There he went and worked hard to win his way into the good graces of the people.

Patients came so rapidly that Dr. Kurtz soon had a lucrative practice. He had in mind a day when he would read Blackstone and pass the state bar examinations and change his profession entirely. He did not grow tired of medicine because of lack of practice, but was actuated by a desire for legal knowledge whether he ever practiced or not.

Back to Study Law.

He saved his money until he had more than enough to carry him through the three years' law course at Missouri. When a young doctor, seeking a practice, made Dr. Kurtz an offer for his office, good will and practice, he accepted and came back to his alma mater for further instruction.

Dr. Kurtz entered the School of Law last February and did one semester's work. In the summer school he took such work in the College of Arts and Science as have a bearing upon the study of law. He feels as determined to continue his work until he has his coveted degree, bachelor of laws.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY.

The Columbia and Teachers High Are Combined This Year.

Once more the geographies, grammars, spelling books, arithmetics and other volumes must be hauled out and dusted. The Columbia public schools will begin Monday. The district voted money last spring for the erection of a ward school and a high school building. Neither is completed.

The faculty of the city high school has been added to the high school of the School of Education and all the work will be done under the supervision of Dr. J. L. Meriam of the University of Missouri. High school pupils who live in the Columbia school district can attend the high school free of charge this year. The school will occupy the building at the corner of Cherry and Tenth streets as last year.

"THE GOLDEN GIRL" PLEASES.

Clean Humor in Musical Comedy at the Columbia.

Season 1909-10 of the Columbia theater opened last night with "The Golden Girl." It was a real opener. If "The Golden Girl" were a problem play it might be described as "gripping" but it is a musical show and a good one, for when the curtain fell the audience was still whistling "I Think I Hear a Woodpecker Knocking on My Family Tree."

The scene is at West Point. Cadet Jefferson Carter, without money and family tree and with poor prospects of achieving fame, is madly in love with Dixie Columbia Curtis, whom he has invited to the graduation hop. On the eve of the ball he is consigned to the guard house for hazing. Dixie leads the grand march on the arm of Cadet Captain Fisk, heir to millions. Dorothy Hale, the West Point college widow, known as the "fiend," ensnares, for the ball, Cadet "Bobby" Harrison who wanted to be a soldier and didn't like girls.

Dixie is the ward of General Varney, U. S. A., and General Carroll, C. S. A., who had a "love affair" themselves in the '60s. Fisk offers her his fortune, and, dazzled, Dixie asks Jefferson as to his ancestry and ambitions. In a dream "Jeff's" ancestors come to him in the form of convict, nihilist, loan shark and pirate. Dixie, too, has a dream in which as Mrs. Fisk, she is turned into a statue of gold. Both awake much frightened but more in love with each other, and amid medley finale the curtain drops.

The production has much snap, dignity, clever situations and clean humor. Jimmy Lucas, as "Jefferson Carter," in near George Cohan style, was responsible for much of the hit the play made. Miss Marie Flynn was a winsome Dixie. And the production was further cast well in Miss Mina Davis as the "Fiend" and in Franklin Farnum as Fisk.
